Senior Class Song

Class of 1934,
Strong for thee we'll stand;
Every day we'll love thee more,
Working hand in hand.
Trials and hardships come our way;
Staunch and true we will be,
Striving onward day by day
To prove our loyalty.

CHORUS

We'll rally ever to the Green and White,
The cherished colors of our class.
They stand for courage, duty, truth, and right,
In our hearts we'll hold them fast.
Then let us raise our voices loud and strong
In joyful praise of thee,
And in the years that come along
We'll always love thee, U. N. C.

HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF 1934

MARGARET SPENSER

The class of 1934 entered college life as one of the most absurd looking members of the entire ugly-duckling family. A big, extravagantly loose-jointed creature, she lumbered about during those first few days at a complete loss. Names, faces, buildings, feet, backs—any one of them could bring tears to her overworked eyes. Here was no glamor of gay banjo-accompanied songsters, no blithe carelessness of high school days. On all sides the poor child was met by duties and requirements: see this, see that; don't cut corners; speak to everyone; don't eat too much bread (for everyone gains weight when she first goes to school); be friendly and be courteous to the proper people; don't wear anklets despite the weather and your preference; learn the blue book and the handbook; bear up during the registration lines—you'll have worse ones to go through later. Finally she entered the comparative safety of classes. At the very beginning she was a harum-scarum child, taking flight into any of two hundred and more channels. On the whole, she was miraculously good-natured and well intentioned. One trait she did develop that year along with a sort of superficial dignity was a bull-doggedness that would require little short of a major upheaval to change her mind.

Her first elected officers were: Ruth Williams, president; Margaret Winder, vice-president; Barbara Lincoln, secretary, and Piggie Maynard, treasurer. Under their leadership '34, by the end of the year, appeared to be a quiet, timid, dignified, little thing, still possessed of most of her ugly-duckling qualities, but in all her external characteristics she was extraordinarily misleading. As a matter of fact, she was far from quiet—few classes have had more loud speakers in their ranks than '34—and if she was timid in those days, she outgrew it. Her outstanding characteristic was a remarkable quality for growing. Numerically the ranks of the class dwindled, but in the matter of energy she grew without any regard for proportion.

When she came to school as a sophomore, '34 began to step from behind the veil that had masked her actions as a freshman to enter the field in competition for the college spotlight. Her leaders during the first part of the year were: Margaret Winder, president; Patty Leake, vice-president; Mary Moser, secretary; Bobbie Townsend, treasurer. At first '34 was given the attention of a crying baby, but her dress parade of green and white at Thanksgiving time rather took away any protective attentions she might have been receiving from her elder sisters. She was now formally in the fight for her own and for her own recognition. The second semester necessitated a new election for class officers; those chosen this time were: Octavia Smith, president; Virginia Maslin, vice-president; Sara Shores, secretary; Margaret Plonk, treasurer.

When later campus elections came along, '34 got into the pattern in which she belonged and began her career of politicing. At the very moment that '34 first tried her hand in the business, her college family realized that here in its midst was a politically minded child that would waste many valuable hours discussing near elections, past elections and even delving into possible elections.

Her own class elections for her junior year secured Ruth Long as president, Claudia Moore as vice-president, Sara Shores as secretary, and Mary James Smith, treasurer. Before that time the class had already taken unto herself Miss Dorothy Davis as sponsor, and Richard Johns, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Johns, as mascot. All in all she entered her junior year with all colors flying. Mary Moser worked through the year in a job that would have driven many another entirely mad—running a Junior Shoppe with co-eds as the chief loss. And those co-eds . At times they even assumed a larger part of '34's attention than the everlastingly interesting politics.

So much happened that year—banks failed, the library burned, Junior-Senior following the society dances, elections, last mass meeting—'34 went around the mad merry-go-round. However, that merry-go-round failed even to get in sight of the whirl that '34 found herself in as a senior. Here her ugly duckling qualities of wings that were too big and strong found an excellent place for exercise. In the great strength and vigor that she exerted in the campus, '34 began to shed her duckling traits and, although a swan's loveliness was never to be hers, she did assume a simple grace and dignity that set her apart from her earlier self. Her social graces exercised themselves fully in so many lovely occasions—the faculty reception for the seniors, the senior dinner and dance, the society dances, the Honor Roll tea in the new, beautiful society halls, Junior-Senior, and commencement. During this time her class officers had been Mary Moser as president; Margaret Spenser as vice-president; Lilla Bell as secretary, and Ruth Long as treasurer.

Thus far '34 is just beginning to emerge from her ugly coat. She is showing qualities and traits that one sincerely believes will be followed all her life. During her senior year she has shown that Margaret Plonk and Alice Armfield are examples of what she is capable of giving.

What '34 has done in her four college years is not extraordinarily worthy of being related in a history, but as preparation for really worthwhile facts perhaps these four years will assume an importance in the scheme of her life that will prove that with perseverance she truly stands for "courage, duty, truth, and right."

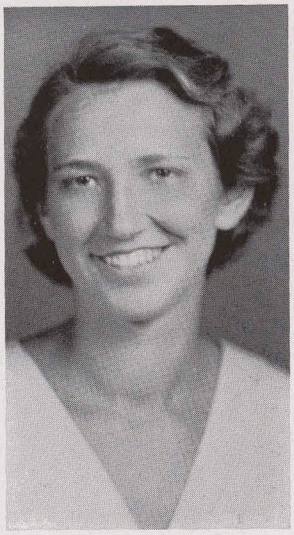

ANNE COOGAN

Class Poem

Laugh not at us, our ignorance of truth,
Nor lead us with false words and gaudy promise
Into a world ephemeral of light and play,
Oh you who seek to be our guides.
Just entering life? Nay, how could that be?
Life beats about us in a furious surge,
Breaking away the walls of sand our elders built.
The lure of its enchanted, moving sweep, its endless flow
Carried us down from the grey dunes above
Until the cold brine swirled about our feet
And we drew back in fear.
The call grew stronger, and again we tried
Until we passed the brackish edge
And stood upon the bar that guards the shore.
We know at last that life at best is cold and salt
But sweet to him that loves it. From trial
We know that strength grows greater as the swimmer dares
And that the blue beyond is safer than the shore.
Before we plunge at last, tell us our course and let us go,
Seeking not vain conceit nor lost, fantastic isle,
Swimming a fair race, our goal within ourselves.

CLASS PROPHECY

JEAN SKADEN

I stretched and sighed wearily, lazily thinking, "Oh, I should like to sleep a hundred years, or least ten—until the depression, and the next war, and graduation, and writing a class prophecy were things of the past."

I yawned audibly and squirmed into a comfortable position on the bed and proceeded to fall blissfully to sleep. My last conscious thought was a serious intention to awaken in one minute, after just a little snitch of a nap—but oblivious of the most serious intentions, I must have slept on, and on, and on.

Suddenly I was awakened by the gentle but firm and commanding voice and not so gentle but equally as commanding shake. "You must get up. Come now, please, really it is paramount. You see—"

I sat up quickly and looked—that is all I did—just looked. It was an indescribable sort of look. It must have contained all the elements of incomprehension, bewilderment, complete dismay, utter astonishment, and so on through the list of such synonomous terms.

It is true I was sitting on that same small, hard, sadly-in-need-of-paint bed, with the faded cretonne spread, the same on which I had fallen asleep, but other than that I might have been in Africa, Heaven, or Hell, for my surroundings were entirely unfamiliar. I seemed to be encircled by hundreds of marble pillars, and over my head swayed thousands of colored candleabra. I blinked dazedly toward the one who had intruded upon my nap and knew not whether I would face a Cannibal Chief, a Fairy Queen, Satan, or Gabriel, but lo—'twas none of these, but indeed I need look but once to recognize—Miss Killy!

She smiled slightly and sighed, "At last."

"At last, what? Where am I? Why have you moved my bed from my abode?"

She smiled again, more visibly this time, "My dear child," she began, "Don't you understand? You have been sleeping for six years and nothing in our power could awaken you. The old dormitory burned down around your head and still you slept. We built this lovely cathedral in its place—on the C. W. A. program you remember, and in honor of the lovely class of 1934. Yesterday Dr. Austin—you remember Reaville—performed a wonderful experiment upon you and at last you have awakened. It will mean her fame and success. She was such a lovely child but always so headstrong. She will be here in a few minutes and shall witness her success."

At that moment a crowd burst into the room and greeted Miss Killy with loud acclaim. They surrounded me and began to expostulate loudly. Dr. Austin came forward and immediately took the situation in hand. The rest of the crowd were introduced to me and at last I was able to recognize classmates among this sophisticated group.

There was Kat Marrow, the tall distinguished young scientist, a co-partner of Dr. Austin's, who had also achieved outstanding recognition in the field of Science, and Lib Huntley, who had returned from her hospital in Baltimore to witness the outcome of the experiment, and Patty Leake who had brought her family and returned to Greensboro for an opportunity to see her old classmates.

I was informed that this was the day of the 1934 reunion and many of the girls returned to the College for an opportunity to renew friendships and talk over old times. They hurried me out to a waiting limosine and rushed me down town to a pretentious shop, with an electric sign over its door that informed me that it was the "Bonitz Shoppe—Home of Aristocratic Individuality." I was led inside where I was almost miraculously transformed into a "lady of the day"—hair shampooed, and coiffured, nails manicured, and diverse and sundry other such operations. I was quickly outfitted in attire similar to that of my friends. The outfit consisted of a pair of grey flannel trousers, with a navy blue tailored jacket, and a grey fedora. I felt incredibly uncomfortable and could not assume the nonchalant ease of my friends.

Just as we were preparing to leave, the proprietress, Miss Katherine Bonitz appeared. She exclaimed profusely about my suit which she assured me was the latest. I learned that she had established this Shoppe after attaining the highest executive position in Meyer's Department Store, and was now famous throughout the South for her efficiently managed Shoppe.

I was now escorted back to the waiting car and we hastened back to the College. By this time I was partially getting my bearings and most of the school looked familiar except for the Cathedral instead of Woman's Dorm.

A large crowd had gathered at the Cathedral and everyone seemed to be searching wildly for something as our car drove up to the gateway. We entered the search entirely unaware and unable to discover what it was we were looking for. At last a tiny little girl pushed her way through the crowd and tapped me on the shoulder—"Have you found him?" she asked.

"Found who?" I asked.

"Why, my brother. He must be lost because I asked Georgie if he had seen him and he said

"no" and I said "Why" and he asid "because he isn't here" and so you see he must be lost and I do want to find him because I want to show him my little blue hat."

"But where is your blue hat?" I inquired.

"Oh, there you go—you see I don't have it, my brother has it and that's why I want to find my brother because he has my little blue hat."

"Why, Ruthie Gracie Allen Davenport," I cried, recognizing the little creature at last. We greeted each other and talked, or rather I listened while she related to me what had happened to all the old gang since I last had seen them.

Ruth Long, she told me had succeeded Miss Elliott, when Miss Elliott had resigned. Ruth had refused to run as the candidate on the Socialist ticket as President of the United States because she preferred to settle down and marry "The boy back home."—"And she'd have had my vote too" informed Ruthie G. A. Davenport. Margaret Winder had taken the final leap and was now living perilously near a "Cliff."

Rose Paul was prosperously running a nursery school in Washington, D. C., which was restricted to the children of the President, Congressmen, and such. She was ably assisted by Kennon Taylor, and Rowena Tull.

Barney Johnson had taken unto herself a "Frankfurter" and was now busily and happily socializing little sausages.

But Ruthie now seemed anxious to renew the search for her blue hat, because she was determined that her brother must see it although he too was lost. But the crowd had dispersed and she could find no one to listen to her tale of woe.

"Oh, I know where they've gone," she exclaimed, "And I do hope they have my blue hat—The banquet, the 1934 banquet. Let's run or we'll have to stand in line."

Although we raced to the dining room the line had already formed, and although I had spent four years standing in everlasting lines never had I seen a line equal to this one. It seemed to be miles long and I could not even see the beginning. We took our stand at the end and Ruthie continued her recital.

"Look up there, Alice Armfield. Did you know that when she completed her studies abroad she returned to good ol' N. C.? She was recently elected President of the College. Last week she granted the girls a new privilege—cocktail hour; girls are permitted to drink beer and light wines in their own closets between 4:30 and 5:30 if they sign up with their counselors.

I greeted Alice and congratulated her. She looked very distinguished in her tuxedo with the high cut-away collar. She told me that Anne Coogan was happily married and had three sets of twins. At the present time she was in California where she was writing a new book. She had already published several volumes of poems and written two history books, one of which was being used as a text in Curry.

At that moment we heard an unmistakable outburst of laughter behind us and turned to meet Margaret Plonk—"Oh girls, the funniest thing just happened. Someone ran up to me and shouted, 'Hey pledge, skip to Shaw with my book.' Eee-emagine" and she giggled delightedly. It was no wonder she had been mistaken for a frosh pledge because she, of all the people I had seen, still looked as she had the last time I had seen her, except for her dress suit. She informed me laughingly that her secret was "Crazy Water Crystals," and went on to say that she was now Supervisor of Grammar Grades in dear ol' Curry. She told me that Lilla Bell had resigned from her position as Hostess of the Dining and Ball Room of the New York Ritz, and was now on a cross-country tour campaigning for the "Return of the Skirt" because these trousers just didn't suit her type. She was accompanied by Jessiebeth Whitlock at the piano and Susan Sharp at the flute.

At this time Ruthie came back to get me to come and stand in line—"because if everyone didn't stand in line there wouldn't be any line and if there wasn't any line we wouldn't have a place to stand and then we probably wouldn't get any dinner."

"Oh, and did you hear about poor Lib Wills," Ruthie was saying.

"What about her?" I asked.

"Oh, dear, she fell in love."

"Well, and is that so unusual?" I inquired.

"Oh, but you see she fell so hard that she broke off all her teeth."

And then," I urged.

"Oh, then she went to the dentist."

"Yes, and what did he do?"

"Oh, there you go—why he married her of course, silly. He's the one she fell in love with."

"Oh, look, there is Tater Smith, did you know she was Professor of Math. at Columbia University? Look, she is going to lead the College song." Tater, smiling as always, and ready with her usual pep and vigor, stepped to the middle of the floor and led the song while we sang as we had not sung for many years.

As the song ended Ruthie was ready with more news—"Look, there is Mary Dudley, Mary Moser, Barbara Lincoln, Sarah Boger, and Scottie Ewart. Dudley is chairman of the Finance Committee of the President of the United States. She has been able to put everything except my little blue hat in the budget and still the income exceeds the expenditures. Mary Moser is famous since she patented her 'Ditto' machine last year. She says she owes all her success to Mr. A. C. Hall, who really suggested the idea. Barbara Lincoln took up interior decorating and has practically run Morrison-Neese out of business in Greensboro. Sarah Boger is campaign manager on the Socialist ticket. Scotty is teaching Physical Education in Florida, and they say she has to act out everything because no one can understand that 'Yankee' brogue."

"What has become of all those B. S. S. A.'s?" I asked. "O, they? Ha! Ha!—It was so sad—Ha! Ha!—They planned to open a private business college and had the building and equipment all ready. Their motto was "Do it the 'Swift Way!' Efficiency will pay"—But—poor creatures—they went insane from over-work so 'tis said before they even graduated and now the sign is changed to 'Moral—they did it the Swift Way—and suffice it to say—they still pay.' The building was changed into an insane asylum."

I was in the midst of hearty cry in sympathy for my poor companions when Ruthie shouted shrilly and rushed me toward a crowd who had just entered the room. I recognized Susan Gregory, Sally Clegg, Lib Sockwell, and Kat Taylor. They had just returned home from Baltimore and were excitedly relating their experiences. They were working in an Exclusive Ladies Shoppe which Susan managed and in which the other girls were models. Claudia Moore, Sarah McDearman and Mary James Smith were telling of their teaching experiences. They were successful pioneers in a Specialized School of Art in New York City. Claudia taught Physical Education, Sarah dancing, and Mary James, music.

Margaret Kernodle and Margaret Spencer rushed in at this moment shouting, "Extra—Extra, special edition of the Carolinian—just off the press." A whispered explanation from Ruthie informed me that they were Editors-in-Chief, Incorporated, of the New York Times.

We snatched one of the papers and read the large type headlines: THE GREAT MISFORTUNE—Adelaide Fortune, beauty superlative of the Women's College of the University of North Carolina presented to King George. Adelaide, while traveling through England was walking along the streets of London one day, and it so happened that she was busily engaged in pursuing an old N. C. custom—knitting—when suddenly her ball of wool dropped and rolled into the street. She scrambled after it to save it from the wheels of an oncoming carriage. The carriage applied its four wheel brakes and avoided a terrible catastrophe. King George stepped forth apologizing profusely and muttering about "the great misfortune." "Thank you," says Adelaide, "I'm really not so great but I've heard a lot about you."

The next featured item informed us that Margaret Pleasants, the society matron, was vacationing at Pasadena, and Ione Perry, another of the social Élite, was entertaining the North Carolina Governor, Gertrude Turner, and the Supreme Court Judge, Frank Pleasants, at her home in Chicago.

On the next page we witnessed a picture of a mass drill of thousands of girls. We read "Clay Howard successfully directs a camp at Roaring Gap for millions of our nation's unemployed girls."

We were astounded to read on the next column that Mary Lib McDonald and Sara Fisher would be unable to attend the reunion due to an unfortunate accident as a result of a heated discussion concerning which one of them was really driving the airoplane in which they were riding to Greensboro. They were recovering slowly in the hospital in Tarboro.

We read on the next page that the 1934 reunionists would be honorably entertained that evening by Adelaide Crowell, the famous violinist, who had recently returned from her music tour abroad, and by Maxine Allen who had left her Night Club in New York to favor us with a Tap Dance, and by The Vaudeville Comedy act by Highsmith, Mullins, and Mitchell.

As we finished reading the paper someone handed us a tray of food, and we sat down to enjoy a delicious repast of black-eyed peas, liver pudding, blown-up tomatoes, and ginger ice cream. "What has become of Helen Brown Allen?" I asked Ruthie as we were eating.

"Oh, don't you remember, her future was settled before we graduated, in 1934."

"And Sally Shores?" I inquired.

"Oh, she's martyr to Science. She's running a rabbit farm in Australia—all for the cause of science you know. Personally I prefer poodle dogs or angora cats, but each to his own taste."

"And Piggy Maynard," I asked, eager for all the news.

"Happily married—and what could be sweeter—I sometimes thing I'll marry Georgie, if only I could get up the nerve to propose, but I'm one of these shy, retiring violets and—but violets do go well with my little blue hat."

After the meal we listened to toasts, speeches, and greeted friends and talked over old times. We were waxing warm over our reminiscences when Ruthie beckoned wildly for me to please to come with her. I followed her to Shaw where she whispered her secret—"Stay right here," she said, "While I go get my little blue hat. Then we'll go back and show the girls because my little blue hat goes so well with black-eyed peas."

I sighed happily. It had been a long day and I was tired, terribly tired. I stretched out on the bed to rest—just a minute, a tiny nap before she returned

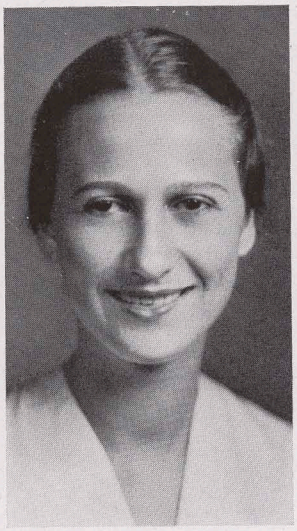

"You must get up. Please, it's 7:45, and you have a first period class."

I sat up and thrust my feet quickly into my mules, and started to make hasty preparations for that first period class.

"Aren't you ashamed. You went sound to sleep at 9 last night and you said you were going to write the class prophecy."

I smiled and answered—"I did!"

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE SENIOR CLASS

We, the class of 1934, being of a sane mind, notwithstanding the tempestuous and cyclonic course pursued for the past four years, do hereby make our last will and testament. The aforementioned document to consist of all our goods, worldly or otherwise, which we do bestow, in a generous and affectionate mood, on the Various and Sundry mentioned below.

ARTICLE I.

To the student body at large, we do will and bequeath our unprecedented success in getting our own way. As necessary factors, we do include Alice Armfield's master mind, Margaret Winder's blarney, Margaret Plonk's unfailing tact, and our own hard heads.

ARTICLE II.

To the incoming Senior Class, we do will and bequeath our 246 individual opinions, in the earnest hope that they will clash valiantly and violently in the numerous Senior Class "dittos."

ARTICLE III.

To our little sisters of the rising Junior Class, we do will and bequeath our unique ability to produce bigger and better chapel programs. May the shades of Julius Caesar and Cab Calloway guide them over the torn carpet of the Aycock stage.

ARTICLE IV.

To the rising Sophomore Class, we do relinquish, with regrets, our solemn dignity, which, though of a dubious nature, was found useful at times. We do also bequeath our quiet and genteel manners, in the vain hope that they may be successfully emulated.

Article V.

To the yet uninitiated Freshman Class, we do will and bequeath, most generously, that vague and mysterious sum of money in the bank. May they be more successful in the securing and the spending of it than we were.

Article VI.

Item I: Tammany Hall leaves to all future inmates, its innocent and harmless pastime of politicing and its unerring aim in mud-slinging. It also adjures the inhabitants to tread lightly its sacred halls lest the long-suffering roof, made insecure by hilarious outbursts and midnight explosions, give up the ghost and fall in.

Item II: We, the four Society presidents, do will our assembled conglomeration of red, green, blue, and purple furniture to the student body, with the parting injunction to cherish it fondly (and pay the bill).

Item III: I, Margaret Spenser, do fervently bestow upon anyone of the required combative and tenacious spirit, my unfulfilled dream of a cut-system.

Item IV: To the 1935 Venus, we do will the following: Lilla Bell's hair, Reaville Austin's eyes, Adelaide Fortune's nose, Ruth Long's complexion, Susan Gregory's smile, Catherine Taylor's figure, and Patty Leake's dignity.

Item V: The Carolinian staff does leave its choice array of virile men and beautiful girls of the cigarette ads to enliven the pages of future editions; and it proudly bequeaths to its incoming staff, a ledger that is definitely out of the "red."

Item VI: We do hereby nominate for oblivion: treeless May Days, jazzless musical clubs, electricityless dormitories, censor boards, parlor dates—and chapel with its appurtenances—coughs, talks and jokes, slightly frayed.

As sole executor and administrator of this valuable parchment, we, the Senior Class, do set our hand and seal to this document on this first day of April in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four, in the town of Greensboro, Guilford County.

(Seal) The Class of '34.

Junior Class Song

Before us wide seas sparkle and endless deserts burn,
We've a thousand miles to travel and a million things to learn,
But U. N. C. will see us through with spirit set alive,
And we'll emerge the brave and true—the Class of '35.

CHORUS

'35, '35—so strong and brave and free,
We'll strive with God to reach our goal
In praise of U. N. C.

Sophomore Class Song

Here's to the Class of '36,
The class of Lavender and White;
We'll cherish, honor, and protect
Ideals that stand for right.
We'll fight the fight, we'll do our best
For loyal friendships true.
We'll ever and forever strive
For the college of N. C. U.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES COMMITTEE

The Student Activities Committee, which has just brought its first year to a successful close, is the central guiding group of all student organization on campus. It is composed of six faculty members who are intensely interested in the various phases of student life and seventeen student leaders who head the major campus organizations. As a student-faculty committee, its chief purpose is to effect close cooperation of the student body, campus officers, faculty, and administration. In this highly representative group all problems relating to student activities are discussed with a view to working out practical solutions. Although the committee acts only in an advisory capacity, its commendable record during 1933-34 under the able guidance of its chairman, Dr. Helen Barton, Head of the Department of Mathematics, gives proof that in the future it will continue to be the most important source of new ideas and constructive undertakings on campus.

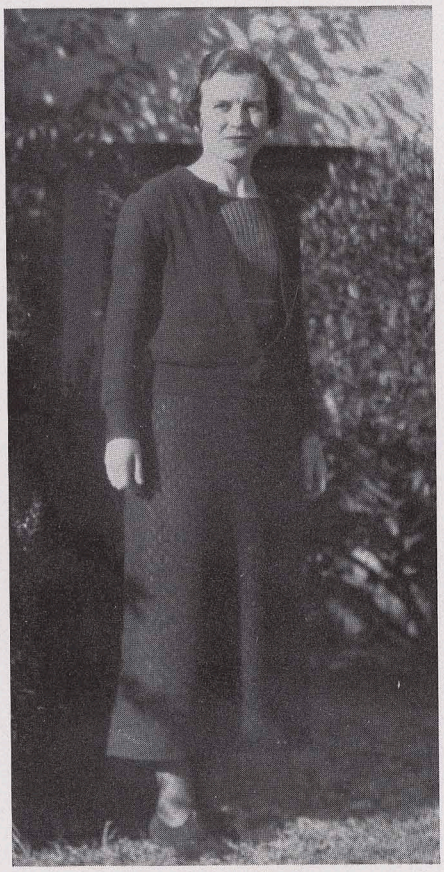

The faculty members are: Miss Vera Largent, Miss Jane Summerell, Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, Dr. Margaret Edwards, Mr. Frank Kiker, and Dr. Helen Barton, Chairman.

MARTHA MERONEY President
RUTH THOMPSON Vice-President
KATE WILKINS Secretary
MARGARET KNIGHT Treasurer
MARGARET MOSER Representative on "Y" Cabinet

The Day Students' Organization is made up of all the students who do not live in the dormitories of the college. The primary motive in the formation of this organization was to secure recognition for the group as a whole in order that town students might participate more fully in college activities. This group has now the same standing as a dormitory unit and is represented on the Legislative Board as such. It likewise has a representative in the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet.

RELIGIOUS ACTIVITIES COUNCIL

Purpose

It is our desire that here on our campus the true spirit of religion, as a "radiant, joyful, liberating force," shall so permeate our life together that we may constantly discover fresh sources of spiritual supply, and in our daily relationships continually build up these "spiritual reserves" essential to life at its highest and best.

Certain great needs are common to us all: the need for worship; the need for fellowship; the need for a knowledge of the infinite resources of religion; the need for opportunity to express in life the convictions being built up in our hearts. It is for such fundamental needs as these that the Religious Activities Council, composed of representatives of the Y. W. C. A., the faculty, and the various church groups, seeks to make provision. The purpose of the Council is two-fold: to nourish on our campus an atmosphere conducive to normal growth in spiritual understanding and power; and, second, to permeate a program of religious activities designed to give adequate opportunity for the daily expression of Christian ideals and convictions.

Shoulder to shoulder, hearts filled with devotion,
With purpose not aimless, but earnest and true,
United by all the ties of deep friendship,
We bring, O Adelphi, our homage to you.

We pledge to you loyalty long and unending,
Loyalty which will be firm, which will be true,
Devotion we pledge you that never will perish,
And love which through all coming time will endure.

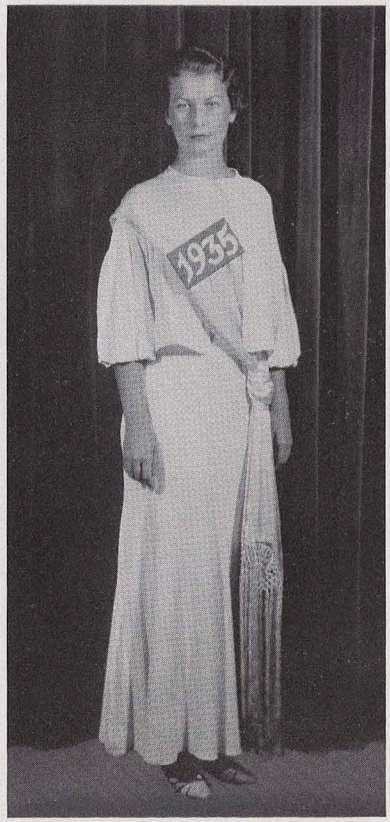

With courage undaunted we'll march ever onward,
Up heights to be won, along parts strange and new;
But now and forever one great band of sisters
We'll be, O Adelphia, still loyal to you.

Aletheian Song

Ah! Truth, whose light throughout the countless years
Has been passed down to us from soul to soul,
We seek Thee, tho' through toil and pain and tears,
Until we find Thee, that we may be whole.
A spark of Thee is born within each breast;
We strive to feed that tiny altar fire
With other sparks we find upon our quest,
O Aletheia, of our pure desire.

Thou art an ideal, boundless, unattained,
While yet we strive to live Thee every day;
Thou art in all, and yet cannot be gained
Save by long search, and weary, and the way
Winds by strongholds of ignorance and sin.
But seeking Thee in all we know, at last
We'll break the gates that there may enter in
Thy light of understanding when our search is past.

Cornelian Song

In joy and praise come let us sing
With anthem clear and strong;
Let all Cornelian voices ring
In free, exulting song.
Of pride for that fair name we bear,
Cornelia, glorious word,
To make us gladly do and dare,
When'er 'tis thought, when'er 'tis heard.

We'll onward, upward ever move,
Our footsteps forward pressed;
Together move in sister love
Upon the mountain's crest,
To gain the fair, wide, spreading view
Which round the mountain lies,
And give us understanding new,
Enlightening our eager eyes.

May Cornelia's name have ne'er a stain
From any daughter's deed.
For her, all glory will be given
And give her honor's meed;
For firm and staunch we'll ever stand
Unto each other true,
And loyal to her noble band,
Hers, yea, her own, our whole lives through.

Dikean Song

Dike, who speaks with reverberant grandeur,
Through listening portals of true womanhood,
Into thy vastness, we come now entrusting
Powers as yet latent with will's hope imbued;
Glad for the toiling, the common endeavor,
Glad for the wideness of ways to be won,
To do for the deed's sake, still keeping the vision,
Trusting secure in the love 'round us thrown.

Stamped with that beauty and light of thy image
We would go forth with a creative faith;
Builders potential and makers of highways,
Easing for others the paths they may take.
And as the sunset gives place to the sunrise,
After us cometh the child of the dawn
To fashion the fabric of dreams scarce completed
And serve thee forever, O light, farther on.

HOCKEY

Brisk weather and enthusiastic coaches combined to start the hockey season off with a series of intense and hard-fought practice games. All teams entered the tournament games well prepared for skillful action, although scholastic difficulties somewhat crippled the original ranks! In spite of "short" teams the tournament play was swift and keen, with the Freshmen claiming the victor's crown.

SOCCER

An unusually large group turned out to enjoy the rough-and-tumble of soccer last fall. Brilliant games between class teams brought the season to a close with a notable victory for the Sophomores, who will present a definite threat to all opponents again next year.

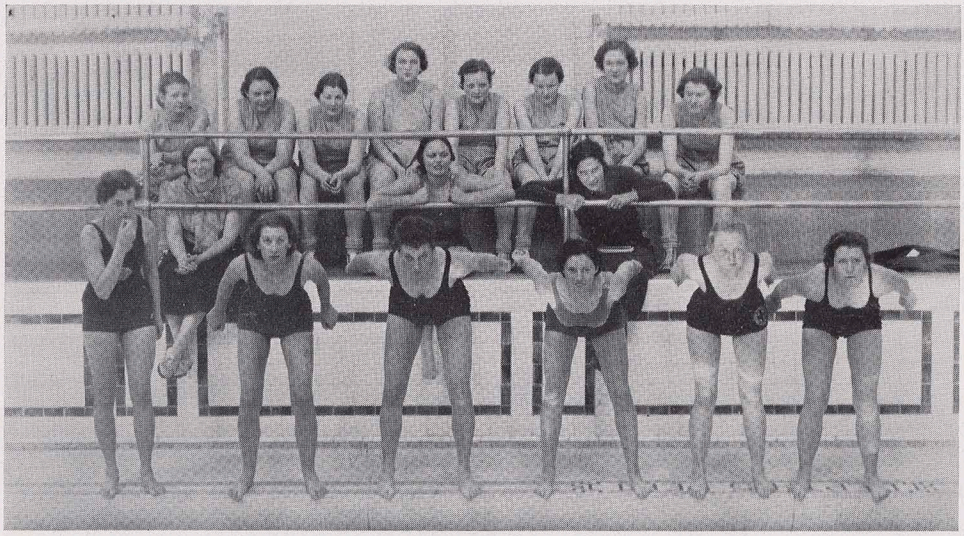

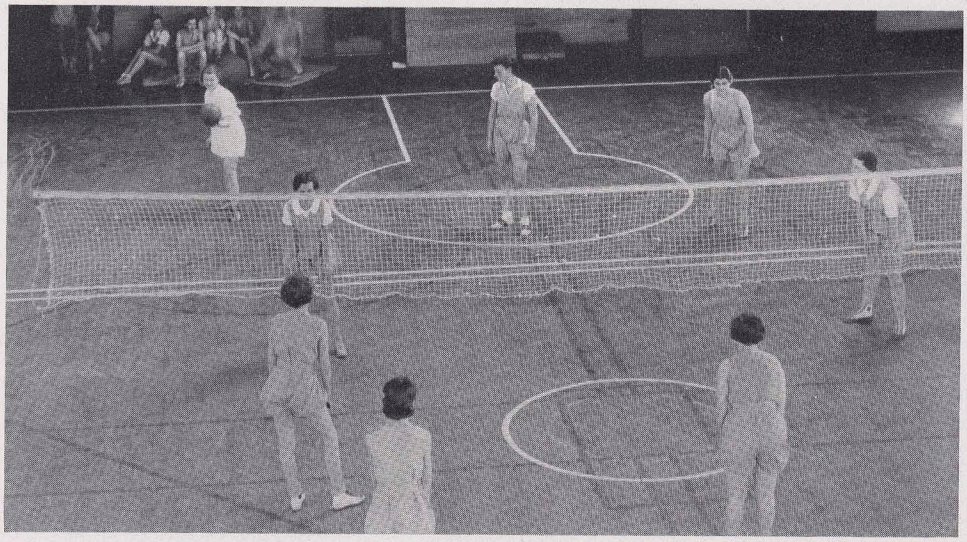

BASKETBALL

Probably the most popular of collegiate indoor sports, basketball was even more thrilling than usual this year because of the intramural games which took place for the first time in addition to the interclass tournament. All societies, many dormitories, and several independent teams made the games literally a "howling" success.

SWIMMING

It was an unusually bright season for college aquatics, with both interclass and intercollegiate competition to cap the climax. The Seniors won the interclass honors. The results of the national telegraphic meet have not yet been announced, but all participants claimed it a novel and exciting experience.

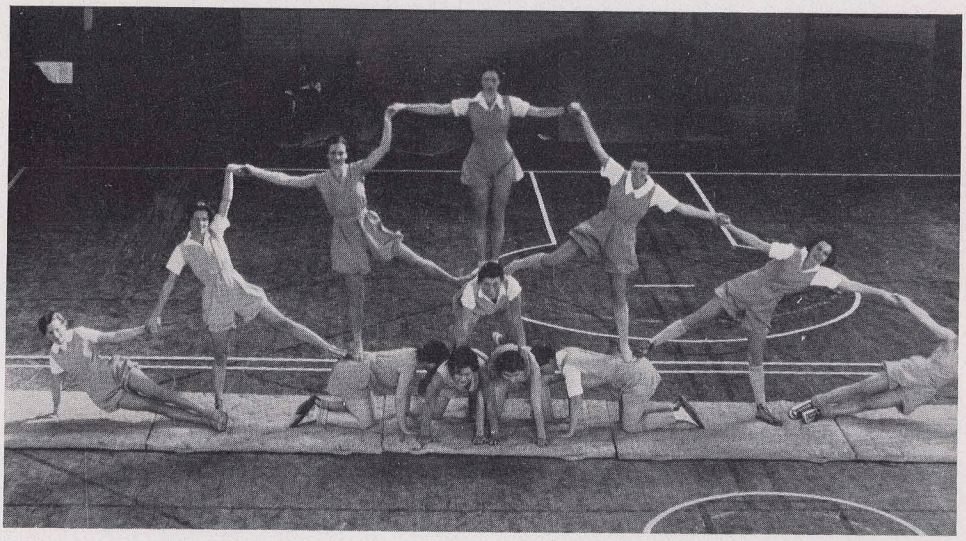

VOLLEY BALL

Service! Volley! Point! Volley ball, although less strenuous than other fall sports, nevertheless has definite enjoyment to offer, and this year was no exception. As usual the Seniors had difficulty in making up a team for the finals, but once done, they carried off the championship in valiant manner. Both spectators and participants got quite a kick out of the matches.

GYMNASTICS

After the first few days of aching agony, the would-be gymnasts began practicing in earnest and developed teams which performed more than creditably in the gym meet which closed the season. Honors fell to the Juniors, but all teams deserved high praise for their fine exhibitions.

BASEBALL

Spring weather and baseball bruises go hand in hand! It's a rough-and-ready game, but a thrilling one, and spring practices this year brought forth unprecedented results in the way of rapid-action ball teams. The final games were practically of world-league calibre with three or four equally good players sharing the honors of "Home-Run Queen."

FIELD-BALL

Those who know nothing of it consider it child's play, yet field-ball is rapidly becoming one of the most popular of the sports offered. It is a comparatively new game on this campus, but an exciting and fast one, as anyone who saw the tournament last fall can testify. Next season we hope for even bigger and better results.

IMPRESSIONS are important. The use of engraved stationery in its various forms is one of the refinements that have become a part of modern culture.

It appeals to persons of discriminating taste.

For the best form of Social, Wedding, and Party Invitations, VISITING CARDS, and so forth, you should use copper plate engraving.

Good Values . . . Consistently!

NO ONE can "measure" or "weigh" style and quality. The best yardstick by which to measure "Good Value" is the integrity and reputation of the store from which you buy. Save yourself the doubts and worries of shopping by buying where you are sure to find "Good Values" consistently. Ellis Stone's policy of only offering merchandise that they know, without doubt, are "Good Values," is your best safeguard.
